A Collision on the Washington and Great Falls Road.

Motorman Pails to Wait at a Switch and a Serious Accident Is Narrow. ly averted - The Cars Come Together With a Crash - The Passengers Kept Cool.

A zerious catastrophe with probable fatalities and injuries was narrowly averted on the Washington and Great Falls Railway about 6:45 o'clock yesterday evening, when cars No. 4 and 36 met in a head-on collision at a point fast above the Foxhall Road. Had it not been that the cars were moving at slow speed, and that the mo-tormen retained their presence of mind, it is likely that a long list of casualities would have resulted. As it was, both motormen were slightly injured and were taken to Georgetown University Huspital for treat-ment. Neither of the cars was seriously damaged and none of the passengers were njured.

The collision appears to have been due to The collision appears to have been due to a mistake on the part of Motorman William J. Limerick, of car No. 4, westbound. He left the city on his way to the Cabin John Bridge terminus on time and proceeded without incident to a switch several hundred yards this side of the Foxhall Road, which crosses the track. The track at this point is single, with a short section of side track parallel to it. According to the schedule, it is said, west and east bound cars arrive at the switch at about the same time. It is customary, however, for the car first arriving at the switch to wait on the sidetrack until the car bound nit on the sidetrack until the car bound in the opposite direction has been passed. Car No. 4 was the first at the switch yes-terday evening, and instead of waiting un-til car No. 26 passed, Motorman Limerick decided that the track was clear and conmade with handsome open-work embroidery. Reduced $1.69

There is a curve in the railway near the Foxhall Rend and this was responsible for the fact that Limerick did not see the approach of car No. 36, in charge of Motorman Daniel Cornwell, who was oblivious to the fact that he had not the right of way. It was not notify car No. 36 rounded the It was not until car No. 36 rounded the curve that the other car came into view. Both motormen saw the impending danger at a giance, as did the passengers on both cars. A collision was almost inevitable, cors. A collision was almost inevitable, and the only course open was to put on brakes and reverse currents. This was immediately done, but the momentum of both cars was such that they could not be stopped, and with a crash they came together. The passengers were all more or less alarmed, but no one jumped.

When the cars came together, both notations are seen at their notes.

When the cars came together, both no-tormen were at their posts and were caught between the front scats and the dashboards of their respective cars. The fenders of both cars were demolished and the platforms badly battred. Motorman Limerick was knocked down, as was Mo-torman Cornwell, and both at first ap-peared to be seriously injured. They were placed on a car and hurried to the city and then to the hospital, where an exam-ination showed that Limerick had sus-tained injuries of the right hand and left. ation showed that Limerick had susined injuries of the right hand and left

According to an apinion of the Attorney for the District rendered the Commissioners yesterday, the District authorities have no legal right to grant a permit to the United States Electric Lighting Company to replace two wives string from a pole on the southeast corner of Fifrenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue northwest, with two similar wires running from the corner of Fifrenth and F Streets northwest, to the Trasmy building, for the purpose of supplying current for the electric lights hung at various angles around that building. The company made a request for permission to so change the wires and the Commissioners referred the matter to the Attentive for the District for an opinion. The request was made on account of the rehasal of the officials at the Teasury Department to allow the wires to be run into the building. All overhead wires are being removed from Fifteenth Sirect, and the refusal of the Trassury authorities places the company in an embarrassing position, according to the statement of their representative yesterday.
